The voice behind the mission

Taneeisha Hammett is a motivational speaker, human trafficking survivor, and advocate who uses her voice to champion dignity, resilience, and meaningful change. Her message reaches beyond the experience of surviving: she speaks to the courage it takes to reclaim your identity, rediscover your purpose, and turn lived experience into a source of hope and leadership. Her commitment to advocacy also extends into public service. Taneeisha serves on the City of Jacksonville's Sex Trafficking Survivors Leadership Council, where the work centers on prevention, public awareness, and recommendations that strengthen the community's response to trafficking. Her service is reflected in official City records, including a City Council-approved reappointment in March 2026. With a passion for helping others feel seen, heard, and empowered, Taneeisha brings a survivor-centered perspective to conferences, community gatherings, educational settings, and conversations about leadership and healing. She believes that a person's past does not have to define their future—and that a voice once silenced can become a powerful instrument for change.
